

April 20, 2015

To Whom It May Concern:

Sarah Hundt has been an intern in my classroom since the beginning of this school year. During her student teaching experience, she has grown to be an important part of our learning family. She has demonstrated that she is a capable, intelligent, and perceptive individual. Ms. Hundt is motivated, mature, and positive with students and their parents. Above all else, she is willing to learn and grow from each and every experience making her a life-long learner.

She has participated fully in planning and implementing lessons in all subject areas, has been involved in behavior and management decisions, problem solving decisions, and differentiating instruction for all learners.

As a classroom teacher, I predict that she will

- Instruct in a manner using research-based practices to insure the learning success of all students.
- Be responsive to data, using both formative and summative assessments to guide instruction.
- Differentiate instruction to meet the needs of the diversity of learners in her classroom, recognizing their cultural, physical, and intellectual differences.
- Take an interest in the lives of her students both inside and outside of the classroom.
- Manage resources to enable students to learn in a safe and stimulating educational environment.
- Be straightforward and honest with students, staff, and parents.
- Be open to evaluation and recommendations from the administration.
- Successfully manage her classroom and maintain discipline in all circumstances.

It is with pleasure that I can recommend Sarah Hundt for a position in an elementary classroom.

Sincerely,

Traci Steere

Traci Steere
Second Grade Classroom Teacher
Sycamore Elementary
Holt, Michigan